

MILITARY SPOUSAL EMPLOYMENT -- FROM TALK TO ACTION, BEST PRACTICES FROM ACROSS THE COUNTRY

Last Modified on 02/19/2020 3:43 pm EST

While being a military spouse can create a host of obligations and commitments to one's family and community, it is not a paid position, even as 77% of employed military spouses say that having two incomes is vitally important to their family. That's why the issue of military spouse employment is critical to our national security and the continued readiness of our military. This interactive discussion session will focus on the best practices for supporting military spouse employment opportunities being adopted by communities, states and installations from across the country.

