

THE EVOLUTION OF MILITARY AND COMMUNITY COMPATIBILITY

Last Modified on 11/02/2022 12:00 pm EDT

Across the nation, defense communities and military installations strive for mutually beneficial relationships, simultaneously supporting military mission and community prosperity.

This session explores background and insights on state-agency efforts promoting civilian-military coordination. Learn how the states of Maryland and Washington have utilized OLDCC grant funding to develop resources that strengthen coordination between the state, military, and communities. Each state provides local communities with technical assistance and guidance based on nationwide best practices for compatible land use, including renewable energy and legislative initiatives.
