

INNOVATION AND PARTNERSHIP AT FORT HOOD, TEXAS: A “ONE COMMUNITY” SUCCESS STORY

Last Modified on 11/02/2022 12:42 pm EDT

In Central Texas one universally known phrase, “The Great Place,” was coined by a former III Corps Commanding General to describe the relationship between Fort Hood and the surrounding cities and counties, where 73% of soldiers and their families live. This relationship developed over many years, becoming more focused during the last 20+ years of deployments. The result is a “Great Place” where communities cooperate with the installation to better the military mission, the installation and their communities in a variety of initiatives. Learn how those joint efforts in education, workforce, housing, transportation and emergency management benefit both the communities and the installation.
